TF1 voted the favourite incumbent channel for the second consecutive year

Gilles Bouleau, Les Enfoirés, The Voice and Grey's anatomy also win awards.

TF1 has been voted incumbent channel of the year for the second consecutive year in the annual TV Notes survey organised by puremedias.com, 20 Minutes and RTL.

The channel also won awards in four categories:

- Best News Anchor for Gilles Bouleau. Jean-Pierre Pernaut and Claire Chazal placed second and fourth, respectively.
- Best Non-Scripted Programme for Les Enfoirés. The NRJ Music Awards came third in the category.
- Best Competition for The Voice, followed by Danse avec les Stars and Secret Story.
- Best Foreign Series for Grey's Anatomy. Criminal Minds and The Mentalist were ranked third and fourth, respectively.

Commenting, Nonce Paolini, Chairman and Chief executive of the TF1 group, said: "The results of the survey reward the day-to-day work of the teams of Catherine Nayl and Jean-François Lancelier. They come at a time when, alongside its editorial redesign, the channel has reasserted its identity through a new corporate campaign. We are honoured to win these awards, attributed by TV viewers. They steel us in our determination to bring viewers mass-appeal, top-quality television that allows us all to share some positive energy."
